OFFICIALS SAY THIS ROAD BEST THROUGH STATE

State Highway Department Says the Route via Middlesboro Better Than Through Jellico and Williamsburg

STATE TO KEEP UP ROAD IN LAUREL AND ROCKCASTLE

Associated Press

FRANKFORT Dec 19—During this winter there will be tow passable roads for automobilists traveling north and south across Kentucky These are the Eastern Dixie Highway from Covington south to the Tennessee line, and the Jackson Highway from Louisville south to the Tennessee line at Adolphus official of the State Highway Department declared today

The announcement about the Eastern Dixie will be of particular interest to the throng in state north of Kentucky who expect to feel the warmer climate of Florida during the winter months one official said

This road is to be made passable through the effort of business men and interested citizens between Corbin and Middlesboro who have joined together for the purpose of raising funds and getting an organization to maintain in passable condition the detour road from Corbin via Walton and Ellisman pending the Barbourville

The state Highway Department today pushed efforts to maintain impassable automobile roads across three stretches of gravel each not in Rockcastle and Laurel counties several miles just south of Rockcastle river have been graveled and stretch of one and one half miles east from Ingston is to be graveled North it was stated in Laurel county a gravel section several miles long will be covered with burned lime to temporary surface for the winter only according to the plans

With the maintenance gang to be, traffic will be able to cross the Tennessee line at Cumberland Gap and connect with what is reported to be very good road all the way to Knoxville, J J Mullins, engineer in the department said This, it is believed will prove more satisfactory to travelers than going by the way of Williamsburg, and Jellico to connect at Jellico with what is reported to be a fair to bad road into Knoxville

Reports to the department from Pineville state that representatives of Pineville Middlesboro Barbourville and Corbin left the place in automobiles several thousand dollars is to be used in keeping the Dixie in passable condition between Barbourville and Corbin possible for through tourists during the winter months, the bad gap to interrupt the north and south through traffic

MANY SHOPPERS FROM COUNTRY

Great Influx of Farmers and Visitors Reported Since Last Day Opened

The great influx of farmers and visiting people here to shop in the city on the opening of the Christmas season is a remarkable one and the merchants have been receiving many compliments from the out of town people

The crowds yesterday were in excess of thirty per cent more than the previous Monday and Tuesday and the merchants are looking for a big business from now on until Christmas

Many of the out of town people have been coming in on the early trains and the crowds have been on the streets since early morning

The merchants have been making special efforts to have the store and display windows attractive and the interiors of the stores have been filled with visitors from the neighboring counties

The city authorities have put on a force of traffic officers to handle the traffic and direct visitors to the parking places and have been successful in keeping the traffic moving

A THOUGHT

The seed of evil doers shall never be renowned.—Isa. 14:22

THOSE who provide much wealth for their children, but neglect to improve them in virtue, do like those who feed their horses high, but never train them to the menage.—Socrates.

WHAT ABOUT OUR NATIONAL PARK?

With Norton and Big Stone Gap pulling strongly for their park, it seems a strange apathy has struck this section in regard to the proposed Lincoln national park. Congressman Robsion is making an excellent fight, and has re-introduced the bill providing for the park in the present Congress. His efforts will not only be futile but ridiculous as well unless the local people secure the acreage required.

Several months have passed now since the committees have been working on the project, and we feel that some kind of report should be made in the near future to keep at rest any feeling that failure may result. Has any progress been made? What is the attitude of the principal property holders toward selling the land necessary for the site? What has been done toward securing the funds for the purchase?

We can understand that it is necessary to keep business plans that are tentative in the background until they are consummated, but it seems that something could be made public which would be of direct benefit toward securing the end in view. Those men who have studied the situation thoroughly believe that this section has a wonderful chance toward securing the park, and if we do fail, we will want to know the reason why.

This whole project is too important to allow matters to drag, or to put up with only half attempts in the execution of the work. If it seems that failure is ahead, why not have a conference of all the parties concerned, and see if something can be done before it is too late?

EASY FOR SWINDLERS

The charge that a Chicago man succeeded in swindling buyers of oil stock to the extent of $5,000,000 may not be true as to the individual but it would be easy to believe that the sum is not too large for a shrewd man to accumulate in the fake oil stock game. The strange thing is, that the public fully warned, continues to patronize persons offering great riches on mere scraps of paper.

The seller of wildcat stock is more of a capper than a salesman. He puts his business on a gaming basis. He appeals to the sporting quality of his customers. But the pitiful part is that the victims are not sports. They are persons who, in the main, have saved painfully or have received estates accumulated through years of self-sacrifice.

The wire tapper's victims receive very little sympathy because they knowingly engage in an illegitimate transaction. They are caught while trying to steal. But the buyer of wildcat oil stock may honestly think there is a chance to make great gains legitimately from a small investment. The fact that bonanzas have been struck is the basis for the hope which springs eternal in the oil game.

It would be difficult, if it were able to prevent investment in ventures which may not prove successful. But there should be good faith in the effort to find the bonanza in the oil development. The fact is that in many cases there is no good faith on the part of the promoters. They are out to sell nothing but talk and trash. Such agencies are clearly within the grasp of the law and the law should close its hand.—Louisville Times.

THE OPEN FORUM

Old Times

Editor Daily News: How many Christmas presents are you giving this year? Last night Friend Wife showed us the complete list of presents that are being given by all members of our family. When it was handed to us, we thought at first it was an inventory of our household furnishings.

Our mind slipped back to the simplicity of some of the old-time Christmases.

In particular we recalled the finest Christmas we ever had. We were a boy then. Most of the presents were home-made. Grandma furnished mittens, knitted by oil lamp after we'd been tucked in bed—thick warm mittens with a long cord that extended up through coat sleeves and around the neck to prevent loss. Aunt Sapphronia gave us a basket of Christmas cookies, shaped like animals and stars and covered with delicious colored sugar.

Uncle Tom gave us a watch, and his generosity appalled us even if it was the old turnip that he'd discarded. You can imagine the reaction you'd get if you tried giving a 1923 boy a second-hand timepiece.

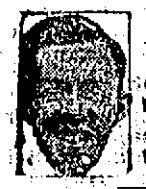
Most of the presents were useful, in the old days, including a reefer overcoat and a new pair of shoes. As for "boughten" presents, they were limited to "The Erie Train Boy," by Alger, Henty's "With Clive in India," a New Testament, a sled, a pair of skates and that most wonderful of all old-time toys, a tin monkey that climbed a string.

At that, Christmas of long ago represented proportionately as big an outlay as now, comparing the family incomes of the two periods.

But the gift itself was secondary to the spirit of the giver, far more than in the present generation. Somehow we believe the Christmas dinners of those days were superior. The Christmas Eve entertainment at the church was as enjoyable, to us, as the modern movie. And the ride in a cutter over the deep snow beat the auto trip of 1923.

Christmas has changed, but no more so than the rest of life. An advancing standard of living has its price.

—Old Timer.



Tom Sims Says

Staying single during Leap Year will be difficult. Plan now. Look at the price of furniture.

Perhaps the safest way of staying single during Leap Year is to be sure you have no auto.

Stop, look and listen. Leap Year's coming. Beware of grass widows.

Hoover is urging consolidation of railroads. If it means longer blankets in Pullmans we favor it.

The Pullman people have millions of blankets, yet they are short.

That's the trouble with Pullmans. You may not be afraid to sleep but you get cold feet.

Pullman porters as a rule, act more like Eskimos than Africans.

Here's an alibi for salesmen. "No orders today. Feet frozen on Pullman last night."

Fine training for a long trip on a Pullman is to sleep with your feet out a window.

Bride shot at her husband in Chicago. This is one way you can tell when the honeymoon is over.

Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) bank cashier and $40,000 are missing. So he may be Christmas shoping.

Some things could be worse. Austria has a postal strike. Imagine such a calamity during Christmas!

Everything could be worse. Suppose book agents and insurance men ate onions for breakfast and lunch!

There's one way to stay single during Leap Year. Eat onions.

Syracuse (N. Y.) couple have their second set of twins this year. Well, two at a time are cheaper.

A Worcester (Mass) couple were fined for fighting over politics instead of over how he treats her.

News from London. Crows are stealing golf balls. Fair enough. Golfers always want birdies.

The British are polite. Members of Parliament have got out to give five more women seats.

News from Paris. French women may be given the vote soon. This is one style Paris didn't set.

Big fog in Paris stopped traffic. Maybe it was so thick you couldn't see what you were drinking.

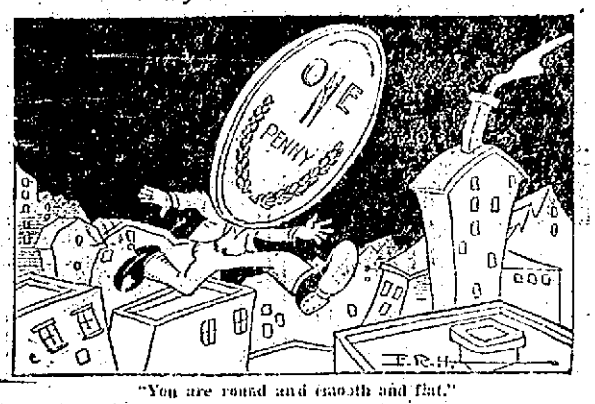
News from Germany. Closely clipped hair is popular. Well, it makes heads easier to scratch.

Next year is Leap Year, but candidates are already leaping at every chance they get.

The women are supposed to propose during Leap Year. Instead of talking the men into proposing.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



"You are round and smooth and flat."

"Simple Simon," called the Riddle Lady, "here is a riddle for you. Not that everybody in Riddle Town can't guess, but I'm sure that you will guess first. It's something that you have been wanting for a long time. Try as hard as you can, for the prize is the same as the answer."

"All right," grinned Simple Simon. "But I hope it's not a whale. I wouldn't have any place to keep it. Mother said she wouldn't have any whales around."

"Oh, no! It isn't a whale," laughed the Riddle Lady. "It's much, much smaller."

"All right," said Simple Simon again. "I'll try it."

"If we guess it," whispered the Twins, "we'll give you the prize."

"No you won't," spoke up the Pieman. "No such thing! Simon is not as simple as he pretends. Let him do his own guessing!"

"I'll have to begin," said the Riddle Lady. "Time is flying. So everybody be quiet please." Then she began:

"You are round and smooth and flat,
And you never wear a hat,
When you travel over town
You wear neither suit nor gown.

"In pockets you burn holes I'm told,
But when I touch you you're quite cold,
And they say you simply fly!
You've got no feathers. Is that why?

"Your name is on your back in print,
Not candy, yet you're made in mint.
You've the moving habit strong
And never stay in one place long.

"Come of quite a steady race,
But show your age upon your face,
Not that you're old, my goodness, no,
But there's the year that tells us so.

"Often in a single day
You move twenty times away,
And every time you spend a cent,
Is it cheaper, friend than rent?

"You have often times been seen
Slipping in a slot machine,
Telling fat folks what they weigh.
'Mercy on us!' people say.

"Are you fond of lollypops
That you're always in the shops?
And each time you hunt a slot
You spend every bit you've got.

"When you're new you are bright as gold,
But when you are getting old,
Sober colors age must bring,
You get brown as anything.

"Now what is it?" asked the Riddle Lady.

"It's a penny!" said Simple Simon, just like that.

"Goody! Simple Simon's guessed! Simple Simon's guessed!" sang Nancy.

"So he has," declared the Riddle Lady, and she handed Simple Simon a bright new one, date, name and all.

"Now you may have your pie," said the Pieman.

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

BY BERTON BRALEY

JACK didn't know much about her,
Jill didn't know much about him,
Just strangers, as you might aver,
And victims of Dan Cupid's whim.
They married, however, as people will do,
Believing that they could make One out of Two.

BILL thought he knew all about Ann,
Ann thought she knew all about Bill.
Their love with their childhood began,
They married—as some people will,
Believing, as lovers have constantly done,
That they could change Two quite completely to One.

JACK and Jill are the happiest pair
That you will be likely to scan,
Unless you should chance to compare
Their rapture with Bill and with Ann.
Which proves—well, it proves—well, I think if I knew
I wouldn't leave just what it proves up to you!

WHO SAID THERE W AS NO SANTA CLAUS?

I was hardly talking to Ruth now, little Marquise. I was trying to give a reason for myself for my fear of being absolutely honest with Jack.

"Everything that we human beings know," I continued, "must be adjusted and adjudicated by the mind of man and the mind of man, my dear Ruth is often in violent discord with the law of nature. We have been taught to separate our brains, our senses, our reason and our emotion, just as we separate husbands and wives from each other when all the while the mind and the senses say he partners and friends just as husbands and wives may be partners and friends all through life.

"As it is we try to make women all emotion and sentiment and we have been taught that men are all reason and intelligence when if truth were known I think women are the harder and more sensible of the two and men more emotional and sentimental. Consequently men and women can never combine on the old traditional basis any more than we can combine oil and water.

"I think of this more and more so, just now, because I am quite sure that in the main Sydney Carton is what you would call a moral man. In fact I have admired and respected him more than any other man I have ever known, not including Karl Whitney.

Here, little Marquise, Ruth asked me a surprising question.

"Don't you respect Jack, Leslie? I have always felt a woman must respect the man she loves. I felt my love going the moment I began to lose my respect for Harry."

"No you didn't, Ruth," I answered. "You should know better than any one else that a woman can love a man very dearly and not respect him.

"Your love began to grow cold when Harry outraged your sense of decency and right. In fact, I think a woman rarely loves the man she respects most. There is no such material in a woman's love. I am quite sure that I would never love a perfect man if I could find one. I am quite sure that I do not know—in fact no one knows just the conditions that led up to Sydney's liasion with Paula Perier, just what circumstances brought emotion to ascendancy and pushed into the background. But I am quite sure I know him well enough to know that his conscience has been on the job ever since that affair. That is why he does not like to come here. The sight of his child stabs him to the heart. That is the psychology of human nature which tells us the difference between right and wrong. Yet according to nature and nature's law, little Jack is a splendid example of eugenics. He is the handsomest and most perfect baby physically I have ever known."

TOMORROW—Leslie continues the letter—Misunderstanding of marriage.

Your Health

Body Itching

At this season of year (owing to change in temperature, habits and diet, many people experience what is known as body itching. It is a most uncomfortable and unhealthy condition, most pronounced at retiring or arising, also when sitting near a hot stove or other heater and noticeable under certain conditions when wearing heavy clothing.

Free perspiration and a moist skin, which is characteristic of most people during warmer weather, are often changed completely. The condition of the skin, owing to lack of proper exercise and also from absence of any frequent bathing facilities undergoes a great change and becomes dry, hard and irritated. This condition produces small surface scale which somewhat resemble dry, scaly dandruff, fall off.

Lack of activity in many ways cause this condition. Change in diet is another cause.

Reverse the causal habits, get good exercise, proper ventilation and avoid all excesses. The skin must function in winter as well as summer to insure skin health and proper elimination. Do not neglect frequent baths. They tone the skin in a way no other agent can.

Never sleep in the undergarments you have worn during the day. Above all, do not wear stockings in bed you have had on all day. Foot poisoning results from this habit, causing scaly condition and cracks between the toes with intense itching.

For body itching as a temporary relief, try a bath of soda. One half-pound of ordinary baking soda dissolved in a tub of tepid water will do the business. Have the soda bath of not more than ten minutes duration, dry with a soft towel. Do not rub the body but simply pat dry.

CHRISTMAS WAITS

"It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old—"
Quaint Christmas waits were won't to sing
As 'round the lanes they strolled—
Gay yuletide minstrels they, to whom
Wassil and coin were doled!

But nowadays, they stand outside
Our homes, unwanted, unfed.
Poor waifs who shiver with the cold,
Whose hands are chapped and red—
They neither pipe nor carols raise
For lack of daily bread.

Shabby and starved and pitiful,
How can such children sing
Or greetings give to Mary's Son
In joyful caroling?
They have no part in mirth whose lives
Are maimed and suffering.

Oh, slow of heart! The friendless poor
He who compassionates
Thrice blessed is! The little Christ
Roams with these Christmas
waits—
Give, lest you drive this year away
His blessing from your gates!

Surprise Shower for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoe

About 30 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoe gave them a surprise shower last night at their new home on Cumberland avenue. Sandwiches, coffee and fruit were served at the close of the evening.

Entertain at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Sparks had as their dinner guests last night the following: Misses Marion Weber, Waunita Wester, Stella Cross, Charlotte Stiles and Wilnah Hutcheson, and little Jean and Bernard Sparks.

Mrs. Ernest Warren Gives Birthday Dinner

Mrs. Ernest Warren entertained with a turkey dinner Monday night in honor of the birthdays of her husband, of his mother, Mrs. A. A. Warren, and of her little son, Ernest, jr. Those at the dinner were: Miss M. Rey Taylor, Mrs. McGarvey, Miss Bessie Edwards, Mrs. A. A. Warren, Miss Virginia Warren, S. H. Fulkerson of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Warren and son, Ernest, jr.

Enjoyable Dance Last Night

The dance last night at the Hotel Cumberland was one of the most enjoyable of the season the excellent music furnished by the Birmingham orchestra, the Alabamans, leading largely to the success of the occasion. Among the out-of-town attendants were: Harry Isaacs, Joe Thomas, H. H. Alpers, Bill Farley, Myers Ingram, Headley Card, George Reese, Harry Petree, Wainright Foley, Harry Carr, and J. C. Dickey, of Pineville.

O. S. O. Club Meets Yesterday

Members of the O. S. O. Club were entered yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Guy Wilson at her home on Twenty-fifth street. A feature of the afternoon was the presentation by the club of a beautiful silver sandwich tray to Miss Margaret Campbell, who is to be married December 26. Those present were: Miss Campbell, Miss Martha Morrow, Miss Martha Mitchell, Miss Gladys Johnson, Miss Mary Yenger, Miss Frances Fitzpatrick, Miss Henrietta Gordon, Mrs. J. N. Nuckols and Mrs. Wilson.

Christian Church Men Have Banquet

About 75 men were present at the banquet given by the Men's class of the First Christian Sunday school to the men of the church in the Sunday school room last night.

John Chesney, toastmaster, was the life of the meeting and proved beyond question his ability as an entertainer. Short speeches were made by Harmon Burkes, class president, Jack Chesney, of the boys' class, Harry A. Campbell, W. L. Buchanan and the Rev. A. B. Reeves, pastor.

A feature of the evening was a radio program. All the numbers, most of which were broadcasted at Pittsburgh and at Jefferson City, Mo., were heard distinctly and enjoyed. The banquet dinner was prepared and served by the women of the church.

Mrs. F. M. Gordon returned Sunday from a week's stay at the home of her son, Joe Gordon, near Arthur, Tenn.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

CHRISTMAS DINNER

If you had turkey for Thanksgiving, you may not want it for Christmas, but there is a great variety of meats from which to choose.

Roast Goose is quite Christmassy and with prune onion or tomato stuffing, delicious.

A crown roast of pork is appropriate and perhaps the nicest sort of "piece de resistance" for the small family.

Not only the dinner menu should be carefully planned but the meals for the entire day. Breakfast is apt to be a hurried meal for the cook if she is also the housewife, so let this meal be easy to get.

If Christmas dinner is served at one o'clock, a light, easily digestible supper will be welcome. In many families the "going-to-the-cupboard" part of Christmas is considered as much fun as the dinner itself. But if the same rich and heavy foods are indulged in that formed the dinner, indigestion may result.

Christmas supper served in the living room will appeal to the family.

A reasonable amount of thought should be used to prevent repeating flavors. For instance, if grapefruit is used for breakfast, don't begin the Christmas dinner with chilled grapefruit. Or if crown of pork is the dinner meat, don't serve bacon or sausage for breakfast.

Menu Suggestions

Use pimentoes, pickled beets and olives for garnishing the Christmas canapes. These should be in the shape of stars.

Maraschino, candied, preserved or canned cherries carry out the Christmast colors in deserts.

The blushing apples are colored with tiny red cinnamon candies.

The orange juice should be prepared the night before.

The salad in the dinner menu is made of mixed fruit served in a bright red apple cup on a bed of shredded leaf lettuce. A small spoonful if whipped cream topped with a bit of crimson jelly or cherry may cover the salad piled slightly above the apple shell.

Roast Goose

Goose should not be more than eight months old at the most. Four to six months is preferred, although month-goose is usually roasted without a stuffing. An eight month to a year old goose should be steamed before roasting.

Scrub and wash thoroughly inside and out. Be sure any soft fat on the inside is removed. Rinse well in cold water; wipe dry. Rub inside with salt and pepper and onion cut in half. Stuff and sew the opening, then truss and put in roaster. Roast an hour and pour off fat in the pan. Then dredge with flour, season with salt and pepper and roast one to two hours longer, depending on age of bird. When flour is browned baste with boiling salted water. A goose is usually so fat that pure water is better for basting than the drippings in the roaster.

Prune Stuffing

One cup prunes, 2½ cups soft stale bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1-8 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, 4 tenspoons melted butter.

Wash prunes and soak over night in cold water to cover. Cook in water until tender but not broken. Drain and reserve juice to moisten dressing. Stone prunes and chop coarsely. Mix prunes with crumbs, seasonings, grated rind and juice of lemon. Add butter and toss with a fork. Moisten with prune juice.

Two cups of bread crumbs and one-half cups Italian chestnuts boiled and chopped make a delicious dressing instead o fall bread crumbs.

Martinique Potatoes

Six large baked potatoes 3 tablespoons butter, 4 teaspoons cream, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few gratings nutmeg.

Remove the potatoes from the skins and mash. Beat in butter, cream, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored and beat into potatoes. Cook three minutes, stirring constantly. Beat white of egg until stiff and dry and fold into mixture. Shape between two buttered spoons, place on a butter dripping pan or sheet and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. The potatoes should brown slightly while baking.

CHOICE OF MENUS

Breakfast

Orange juice, bacon and eggs, toast, coffee.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Value so pronounced that you are justified in looking upon the purchase of a Dodge Brothers Motor Car as the soundest possible investment in transportation.

Not a dollar is added to the purchase price to support a free service policy; nor to cover the costliness of numerous body or chassis types; nor to pay interest on borrowed money; nor to maintain a multiple organization of middlemen.

Dodge Brothers finance themselves. They sell directly through a single organization of dealers to you. They do not believe in charging in advance for service you may never need. They have developed remarkable economies, and a time-seasoned product, by concentrating on standard types.

These facts are reflected, not only in the price of the Car, but in the quality of workmanship and materials that enter into its construction.

It Won't Be Long Now!

This popular "slang" expression works in rather well, just at this time. With Christmas right on our heels and without our homes in order we cannot entertain our visitors and relatives to the best advantage.

Folks who have been buying early and those who have been looking around say we have by far the prettiest store in the Kentucky mountains. Our stocks have been selected from the Chicago and Grand Rapids market and each piece is selected as carefully as if we were going to use it right here in our own home.

We most earnestly invite you to come in and look around and then make out your list. In addition to our furniture for the Dining Room, Bed Room, Living Room and Entrance Hall, we are showing many Occasional Pieces which are highly decorattive as well as thoroughly practical. They are chosen with the same strict adherence to good quality that distinguish our larger furnishings.

Our Jewelry Shop adjoining the Home Furnishings store is the most popular Gift center in the city and you will receive the same courteous attention that we pride ourselves in giving.

A visit to Callison's, we are sure, will prove undoubted interest.

LIVING DEAD MAN PLAYS LEAD IN WEIRD MARITAL TANGLE WHICH THREATENS HAPPINESS OF FOUR

EDWARD J. SAILSTAD

DOROTHY ANDERSON

BOSS R. RICHARDSON

EAU CLAIRE, WIS., Dec. 18.—Edward J. Sailstad has come back from the grave to add still further and brand new complexities to the age-old "eternal triangle."

No novelist ever unraveled a more wierd plot than the one wherein Sailstadt, defendant young inventor and former president of a phonograph manufacturing concern here, has played the "dead".

Bit by bit, it slowly has been unfolding itself since that night three and a half years ago when a man's charred bones were found in the ruins of Sailstad's summer cottage on Nebagamon Lake.

The climax was reached with the arrests in Napa, Calif., of Sailstad and his confidante, pretty Dorothy Anderson, once his secretary, with whom he fled from the specters of that night of ghoulish horror.

Innocent Victims

Other characters in this strange drama are Sailstad's former wife, who, believing him dead, has married again, and her present husband Boss R. Richardson.

They are the innocent victims. Sailstadt's unexpected "resurrection" has broken up their home.

The law decrees them no longer man and wife. So Mrs. Richardson, or Mrs. Sailstadt, is looking to the courts for a divorce from Sailstad to enable her to resume her wedded bliss with husband No. 2.

Shortly before dawn on the morning of August 23, 1920, neighbors discovered the Sailstad cottage in flames. At first no doubt existed but the man who had "perished" was Sailstadt.

Bulk Insurance Payment

Yet little by little, contrary theories came to light. Insurance companies held up payment of policies totaling $62,000 made out to Mrs. Sailstad.

A federal court jury returned a verdict in Mrs. Sailstad's favor. The insurance folks, however, carried it to a higher court. Only a partial settlement has been reached.

Nearly a year and a half after her husband's "death", the "widow" married again.

Detectives, dissatisfied with evidences of the "death" continued their investigations. Recently they reported having definitely established that the body discovered in the burned barrel cottage was not Sailstad's.

Instead it was that of a friend Allen McPace, who had died just a few months before, they said.

Sailstad, according to confessions authorities both here and in California say he has made, admits stealing the corpse from its grave and "planting" it in the blazing pyre, to simulate evidence of his own death.

Impending financial ruin and infatuation for Miss Anderson, who before she became his stenographer, had been an actress in Chicago, prompted his act, he declares.

Immediately after the fire, Sailstad and the girl took flight. First they went to Duluth. Then to St. Louis, Kansas City and Dallas, Tex.

Like Roving Gypsies

Since then they have roamed practically all over the country, with the restlessness of escaped criminals.

"It was hell," says Sailstad. "I was afraid to read the papers—afraid I would go crazy unless I tried to forget.

"It seemed like everyone was watching us. We thought every stranger carried a warrant.

"There was that constant dread of arrest. We wanted to be on the go just anywhere.

In Business

Their infatuation grew, they lived solely for each other. The girl learned the business at which Sailstad made his living—repairing typewriters and sewing machines. They were together constantly.

"Crooked, narrow little streets appealed to me," continues Sailstad. "Perhaps it was because I felt safer in such a place that I like San Antonio best.

"I opened a typewriter shop there. Business was good. We were happy.

"Then a storm came and wiped out the business. It seemed like the hand of Providence warning us to move on.

"We went to Mobile, Ala. Later there were several excursions into Mexico. At last, we reached southern California."

Sailstad became apathetic. He felt his apprehension would be just a matter of time. Sometimes, he saw it as a positive relief.

One night he had a terrible dream. The next day they were arrested. Someone had recognized them. They were traced by their number.

Now the suspense is over. Sailstad and Dorothy are glad.

They face trial on arson charges. But still they see happiness ahead. Some day they hope to begin life anew, as man and wife.

CLAIBORNE COUNTY REPORTS GOOD YEAR FOR FARMERS

C. M. Franklin, county demonstrator for Claiborne county, and Prof. J. W. Baldwin, superintendent of the Claiborne county schools, were in the city today. They report a good harvest season for Claiborne county. Mr. Franklin stated that the tobacco culture began this year has resulted in splendid profit for the growers, despite the fact that the tobacco market has been quiet. He named two instances where farmers made over $300 clear profit, after all expenses had been deducted. One farmer marketed over $500 worth of tobacco from one acre.

DICTATORS OF SPAIN AND ITALY COMBINE TO TAKE SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE FROM THE U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—With Director Mussolini spurring Italy and Dictator Primo de Rivera prodding Spain, the United States will have to step along to retain its South American trade.

And the activities of these two powers behind the throne may also have a great effect on the American immigration situation.

Recently the king of Spain visited the king of Italy. But Alfonso and Victor Emmanuel were merely window dressing. Mussolini, the former socialist blacksmith, and Rivera, the aristocratic general, were the real goods.

Have Great Interest

No countries in the world have a greater interest in South America than Italy and Spain.

All the South American republics, excepting Brazil, were originally harbored a feeling of hatred and disSpanish colonies. For years they trust for the mother country. But the feeling has, of late, been dissipated.

South Americans look to Spain for their culture.

But even more important has been the immigration of Italians, who are especially powerful in the Argentine. Italy must have immigration to live, otherwise she is over-populated.

Tens of thousands of her sturdy sons need to come to the United States. But the immigration laws of the United States have seriously affected this.

Therefore Mussolini is turning his eyes toward South America.

To Rule Trade

Italy and Spain think both can increase trade in automobiles, silk and woolen goods in South America. They will push their wines and oils.

Being Latins and understanding the Latin temperament they think they can eliminate the Anglo-Saxons, the English and Germans to a considerable extent.

That, in a nutshell, is the new world situation. But in the Old World both Spain and Italy expect to campaign and take a most active part in politics. Both resent the French rise to dominance in the European tangle.

There is no doubt, but that Mussolini and Rivera are the men behind the thrones in Italy and Spain, and they expect to accomplish their new aims by trade agreements, military and naval conventions and hard, active work.

King Alfonso of Spain with Dictator Primo de Rivera in background and (right) King Victor Emmanuel of Italy overshadowed by Mussolini.

Ginsburg's Furnish Music

A magnavox amplifier through which music from a phonograph is projected has been placed over the entrance to Ginsburg's Department store and has been attracting considerable attention. The music can be heard all over the block. Radio equipment is used for the music, the phonograph being at the rear of the store.

MEETING TO DISCUSS PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYED VETS

PINEVILLE, Dec. 19.—At an informal meeting of ex-service men in this city, discussion was brought up as to the question of unemployed veterans. The question was raised why the government and civil service positions could not be given to those men who had given their time and in some cases their health to the American republic. Such positions as the carrying of mail from the post offices to the train, which pays a salary sufficient for the care of a family should be turned over to those men who have been disabled and are incapable of heavier work, it was brought out. Plans are being made to look into these matters and if possible to bring the strength of organizations behind the movement. The men expressed their belief in the project and effort on the part of the individuals are being made to obtain help in the work.

COUSINS AT FOUR MILE ENGAGE IN HEATED FRACAS

PINEVILLE, Dec. 19.—Lee and Dill Hendrickson, first cousins, engaged in a fracas at Four Mile yesterday, resulting in the swearing out of a warrant against Dill by Lee Hendrickson. According to the plaintiff, Dill Hendrickson cursed and used improper language toward him and the plaintiff told him that he would have to whip him. When he turned to walk away Dill Hendrickson drew a revolver and shot at him. He turned, however, in time to throw the pistol out of range and thus avoided the shot. Bystanders intervened and the stopped the argument.

UNPLEASANTNESS OF FIGHT OVER MILLIONS PROMPTS MRS. VERA GOULD TO QUIT U. S.

MRS VERA SINCLAIR GOULD AND HER BABY GUINEVERE AS THEY SAILED FOR FRANCE

NEW YORK, Dec, 18— It is letter for all of us, says beautiful Vera Sinclair Gould, widow of George Jay Gould, in explaining why, with her three children, she will probably spend the rest of her life in Europe

Of the children Jane, 5 and baby Gul nevere are too young to interest and the unpleasantness growing out of the litigation over the settlement of their father s estate

But George Jr, 8 is beginning to understand and his large brown eyes are troubled

For the marriage of George Gould to Guinevere Sinclair after the death of his first wife, aroused comment To escape the unpleasantness the financier abandoned the United States and established his wife and their children on the Riviera

They expected to spend the rest of their lives in happiness but the sudden death of Gould changed all that Now the children of his first wife are bringing litigation which will tie up the handsome settlements which he made upon the children of his second marriage

To cover the emergency Mrs Gould came over to dispose of her Manursing l f estate and letus soon is the matter was closed Before sailing she intimated she will offer for sale her town house on Riverside Drive

In a month, or so, she may return to the United States to consult her lawyers After that the little family will seek for complete forgetfulness in Europe and realize that regarding "things worth while" we, in this Twentieth Century, have long outgrown the experimental stage. This is true of electricity. A decade ago it was only in its infancy and some thought it would never reach an adult age. Now it is used for almost every conceivable purpose.

The aeroplane was an experiment of the Wrights.' "Unfeasable; Visionary; Impossible for any machine to fly." Yet the experimental stage has passed and the flying machine has come to stay, having demonstrated its usefulness, commercially and otherwise.

The radio. "Bosh; Humbug; just the theroies of a dreamer." Yet this, too, has passed the experimental stage and its future has no limit.

Now we come to the subject of health. The greatest and most important problem since the biginning of the world

What about Chriopractic, you ask? Ah! Here is an "honest-to-goodness" Health Science which, like the aeroplane and radio, has far outgrown the experimental stage.. Hundreds of thousands of people who had been condemned to a life of continuous pain and suffering have reason to bless the day when they first commenced to take Chiropractic Adjustments.

These are the things that count. Voluntary testimonials from people in every walk of life and of every nationality who have been helped by Chiropractic. Wake up, you who are asleep, and find out that this something which they call Chiropractic is for you and yours.

CHRISTMAS and the Railroads

"At Christmas play, and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year —Tusser

—and what is more instrumental in making conditions favorable for play and good cheer throughout the land than our railroads?

Christmas is the time for visiting and going home, the railroads make visiting and home-going feasible and a pleasure. Christmas is a time for presenting gifts, and for feasting and frolicking, the railroads are the mediums through which the exchange of presents between all sections of the country is made possible, the railroads make possible, too, the possession of nearly all the good things to eat and the things with which to make merry, that are part of the season.

The L. & N Railroad is ready for Christmas—with numerous splendid trains, running on convenient schedules, for passengers who will make Christmas the occasion for a travel holiday; extra service in handling freight, every employee "on his toes" to help all patrons get the utmost in pleasure and cheer from the Yuletide season.

"The Christmas spirit" is in the air. And, through the medium of this advertisement, the 50,000 employees of the L. & N. Railroad send you their greetings and best wishes for a very merry Christmas, and a bright and happy New Year.
